The panicked flight of some 1.2 million Rwandans to Goma, Zaire, has slowed, but disease, dehydration, and what doctors think is cholera are already causing hundreds of deaths, according to relief workers.

- Between 400,000 and 800,000 Rwandan refugees have entered the Bukavu, Zaire area from the French safe zone, according to the Red Cross. [] that another 120,000 Rwandans have fled to Burundi, and Tanzania's Rwandan refugee population is up to 460,500. []

Relief agencies also will need to assist most of the approximately 4.5 million people still in Rwanda. French officials estimate that there are 3.4 million people in their safe zone and that at least 1.5 million people in the zone are on the move and probably poised to enter Zaire, []

- The Red Cross estimates there may still be 500,000 people in northwest Rwanda, and Kigali says about 725,000 are in displaced person camps in the northeast and southeast. []
